Polo Today
Sir Frederick Pollock
Two Fighting Ladies
We Amuse Coste

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

TODAY British and American polo teams play in Long Island. It will be a violent game, serious accidents are to be feared, judging by the mood of the players.

The British have one particularly brilliant man on their team, Lacey. And he is a native of South America.

The most brilliant man on the American team, with one possible exception, is Guest, son of an Englishman, with an American mother.

And the greatest polo player of all time, Devereux Milburn, born in Buffalo, was the son of an Englishman, a great lawyer.

The British seem to have the solid material, and this climate seems to speed it up.

• • •

SIR FREDERICK POLLOCK, a great authority on international law, accepted on Thursday last an honorary degree from Columbia university. The presence of Sir Frederick honored the university, and all connected with it, for Sir Frederick Pollock is in the best sense of the word a learned man, possessing knowledge and able to impart it.

His brief analysis of the Monroe Doctrine, which the late Senator Lodge caused to be printed as a United States document, is the best exposition of that doctrine ever written.

And his book on the life and philosophy of Spinoza is one that should be read by every man interested in philosophical thought and in Spinoza, greatest intellectual genius produced by the Jewish race.

• • •

ON BENDED KNEES, with his forehead buried in his two hands, James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago should be rendering thanks night and morning from now until election day.

A "lady enemy" of Ruth Hannah McCormick, named Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, enters the Illinois race for senator as a bone dry independent.

In the primaries Mrs. McCormick was dry. Now Illinois appears wet, and Mrs. McCormick, sensibly, as a candidate for office accepts the view of the people.

But Illinois politicians think the combative Mrs. Lottie will get enough dry Republican votes to make it impossible for the also combative Mrs. Ruth to win.

And James Hamilton Lewis, born wet, and never dry one second since, will walk in over the bodies of two fighting ladies.

Who says "woman has made no difference in politics?"

COSTE, PEERLESS French flier, "hopping" from New York to Dallas, Tex., 1,700 miles, for a special prize of $25,000, says on arrival: "Pouf, pouf! That was nothing."

He made it in less than 12 hours.

He says also, writing to Mr. Adolph S. Ochs, that the next time he flies he will take an American with him, because "we find you very amusing, you Americans."

Some Americans that go to Paris find the French "very amusing" which makes the account even.

Concerning prohibition, Coste says it doesn't make much difference to him, "For I drink very little besides water."

Nevertheless, observing how we live here, he asks with Gaelic humor, "Why not move the Statue of Liberty to Paris?"

4,000 LATEST ESTIMATES ON STORM'S TOLL

May Reach 5,000, Is Fear Expressed as Bodies Are Recovered.

FUNERAL PYRES BURNING

Victims Cremated Fifty at a Time; More Than 5,000 Injured.

By The Associated Press

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Sept. 6—The number of dead in the hurricane disaster this afternoon was placed at not less than 4,000 by Dr. Anton Calderon, charged by President Rafael Trujillo with the direction of the sanitary service.

Santo Domingo with 400 houses standing out of 10,000 today looked more like a battlefield than the oldest settlement of white men in the new world.

The dead, previously estimated at 2,000 were being pulled out of the wreckage at a dizzying rate.

It is feared that the total will even reach 5,000. Thirty per cent of the more and 5,000 injured are gravely hurt and expected to die.

A United States marine corps officer who flew over from Port Au Prince commented: "It is as if a giant hand had smeared the town down like a toy and then had stirred the pieces with a stick.

Dead Uncounted

"There is no water fit to drink. The waterworks are demolished, the river is a sea of mud and the dead are still uncounted.

"Floods have washed out the newly buried dead in the cemeteries and coffins float around like corks. The dead are being collected in mounds and heaps and trenches and are being burned above ground. Concrete cisterns are being used as funeral pyres, cremating as many as 50 bodies at a time.

"Even at a distance of 10 miles and at an altitude of 4,000 feet in the air it was apparent bodies were being burned. When we landed we could see wagons pass by loaded with dead. The driver would shout and curse and cry, 'more dead, more dead.'

"Nine out of every 10 trees are down and the tops of the few left standing have been cut off as if by a great knife. The Ozama river is out of its banks north and east of the city and those sections are completely inundated.

"Men and women appear with little or no clothes on. There is almost no clothing to be had and children and older people make out as best they can. The people appear to be in a daze and almost hysterical."

While the landing field here has been cleared sufficiently to permit landing of relief planes from Port Au Prince, Havana, the United States and Porto Rico, the landing of ships is not so simple.

SEES DROUTH'S END

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6—Charles L. Mitchell, weather forecaster, predicted today that the remnants of the destructive tropical hurricane coupled with an atmospheric disturbance developing west of the Rockies would break the drouth which has affected many sections.

2 BARGES RAMMED BY LEVIATHAN; 1 SINKS

Liner Undamaged, Continues Trip; Dispute Over Pilot Involved.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—The liner Leviathan, swung out of her course by a strong tide, rammed two barges on the Hudson river as she departed for Europe today with 538 passengers. The liner was undamaged and continued to sea.

One of the barges, fouled by the port anchor of the liner, was dragged several hundred feet down the river, overturned and sunk. Three men leaped to safety from the two barges, owned by the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

The incident was expected to give Commodore Harold Cunningham a new point in his argument with Pilots' Association of New York as to who should pilot the ship in and out of the harbor.

Commodore Cunningham for several years had used only William McLaughlin, who, he said, was the only man competent to handle the biggest thing afloat, with her draft of 36 feet, in the water of New York harbor.

This summer, when the Association assigned another pilot to the task, the commodore brought the ship in himself as he is permitted to do. He continued this procedure each time a strange pilot was assigned. After several confrontations he made peace with the association and since the first of August has accepted the pilot assigned.

Pilot Frank D. Wall was on the bridge today when the accident occurred.

FIRST PICTURE OF ANDREE POLAR DISCOVERY

PARTIES DRAW BATTLE LINES

Both Expected To Start Ohio Campaigns After Conventions.

SIDETRACK DRY ISSUE

Neither Platform To Include Repeal Plank, Is Indication.

BY H. H. DAUGHERTY
Associated Press Political Writer

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 6—Republicans and Democrats are expected to get their state campaigns under way soon after their platform conventions which are scheduled within the next 10 days—Republicans, next Thursday and Friday, and the Democrats the following Tuesday, Sept. 16.

The Democratic compaign under the direction of Chairman Henry G. Bruner of Mansfield, will be directed from the party's state headquarters on the second floor of the Deshler-Wallick hotel and the Republican headquarters will be eight flights of stairs above in the same building. Republican headquarters will be directed by State Senator Earl R. Lewis of St. Clairsville.

No Repeal Proposals

The one definite thing about both platforms as now determined is that neither will carry a plank advocating repeal of the federal prohibition amendment, unless delegates jump the traces and defy their leaders. Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic senatorial nominee, chosen on a platform advocating repeal of the federal prohibition laws has relieved his party of all responsibility for his stand, by declaring it his own personal views.

The Republican party is in control of dry leaders and all candidates from Governor Cooper down, either are self pronounced drys or are opposed to making any platform declaration in favor of prohibition repeal. Inasmuch as Senator Simeon D. Fess, an outstanding dry and the Republican keynoter, has declared prohibition is not an issue unless the Democrats make it so, and has been entrusted with the task of writing the platform planks dealing with national affairs, it appears a safe bet there will be little said in the Republican platform about prohibition. Strict enforcement of all laws probably will be advocated.

Tax Attitude Uncertain

Just what will be the attitude of the two parties on new tax laws as contemplated by the classification tax amendment which becomes effective next Jan. 1, has not been indicated by leaders.

6 ESCAPE AS 2 CARS COLLIDE AT CORNER

Automobiles Driven by Merle Wise and Ervin Dutton Damaged in Crash.

Six occupants of two cars, one driven by Merle Wise of 120 Reed avenue and the other by Ervin Dutton of LaRue, escaped with minor injuries yesterday about 10 p. m. in a collision at Delaware avenue and Superior street. The cars were wrecked.

According to eyewitnesses of the accident, Wise turned onto Delaware avenue from Superior street. As he turned onto the thoroughfare he is said to have collided with the Dutton car. Dutton's machine turned around several times and then struck a telephone pole.

The Wise car was struck almost directly on the front and nearly demolished. In the car with Wise were his wife, daughter and two children of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]

TEACHERS ASSIGNED FOR SCHOOL OPENING

Staff of 200 Instructors and Principals Ready for Beginning of Term Monday.

Two hundred teachers, principals and special teachers will greet pupils of the public schools Monday morning on the opening day of the school year. This is an addition of three instructors over last year.

Several changes have been made in the grades at different buildings, in shifting grades from one school to another. Following last year's plan, the sixth grade from Vernon Heights will be at the Forest Lawn building.

The fifth grade from Davids street school will be at the Glenwood building and the third grade from the Lincoln building will go to the Pearl street school, which will also house the crippled children's school.

Supt. George A. Bowman has urged that parents send their children to school on the first day, in order that they may have the advantage of starting the school year unhandicapped, and that books and supplies be purchased for the students at the earliest possible date.

Miss Catherine Sloan, former teacher here who taught in Youngstown for some time, will return this year and Miss Ruby Craner, who was given a leave of absence to continue her educational work, will return.

The new teachers this year include Kathryn Foucht of Upper Sandusky, Viola Peacock, Dorothy Myers and Ruth Hellman of Marion, Ethel Symes of Brattleboro, Vt., Theodore A. Allen of Springfield, O., Doris Gump of Covington, O., Hamer Mitchell of Bellefontaine, O., William R. Roberts of Springfield, George B. Williams of Athens, O., and Lucille Young of Cumberland, O.

St. Mary's Catholic school has been thoroughly cleaned and redecorated preparatory for the opening of the grade schools next Thursday and Friday and the high school a week from Monday morning.

Rev. Fr. William J. Spickerman, pastor of St. Mary's church, is head of the school.

The date of the opening of the Seventh Day Adventist school has not been announced.

The buildings to which the teachers have been assigned, names of the teachers and the grades to be taught at each building are given below:

Davids Street Building—Grades 1 to 4: Carrie V. Durr, principal; Beatrice Burchard, Elizabeth Dowell, Esther M. Herriot.

Forest Lawn Building—Grades 1 to 6 (including sixth from Vernon): Linda Willauer, principal; DeEmma E. Hawley, Emma Duerr, Mildred Epley, Arena Hinde, Helen P. King, Grace D. Wingett, Catherine Sloan.

Glenwood Building—Grades 1 to 7 (including fifth from Davids): Anne H. Sutherland, principal; Ruth Artz, Elizabeth Crissinger, Josephine Ferry, Gladys C. Harris,

CAPITAL UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Martinez Entrenched in Palace After Argentine President Vacates.

By The Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 6—Martial law was invoked today as the new president, Dr. Enrique Martinez, entrenched himself in the palace vacated by Hipolito Irigoyen, the Argentine's man of mystery.

Public assembly was prohibited and Buenos Aires was placed in the hands of the military. A rigid censorship was established.

Many were wounded in clashes during the night between the police and students, dissatisfied that President Irigoyen merely had retired rather than resigned. Under Argentine law a president may retire for so long as he wishes and delegate power to the vice president.

The retirement climaxed days of political agitation and disorders during which Irigoyen found it necessary to concentrate military forces at strategic places in the capital to prevent a revolution or his assassination.

ARMY LEADERS REVOLT

Picked Government Troops Go Over to Opposition.

By International News Service

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 6—Open revolt by the Argentine army flared up in the Argentine capital today.

Several units of the picked troops which the Irigoyen government had called into Buenos Aires last week to guard against a possible attempted coup d'etat by opposition elements were reported to have gone over to the opposition.

Dissatisfied with the manner in which President Irigoyen had stepped down from office yesterday by delegating his powers of office to Vice President Enrique Martinez, several powerful leaders of the army were reported to have drafted a flat demand to Irigoyen that he unequivocally resign from office.

DRUGGIST HERE AVERTS HOLDUP

John J. Welmer Forces Armed Man from Store in Reply to Threat.

Although John J. Welmer, druggist at 170 North Main street, will soon be 74 years old, he is more than a match for an armed bandit. This he proved last night when, after a man who appeared to be 32 years of age had thrust a gun against his body, he frustrated an attempted holdup and forcibly removed the man from his store.

Entering the store as Mr. Welmer was extinguishing the lights and preparing to leave, the stranger demanded a phosphate. Learning the store contained no soda fountain, he asked for a headache cure. Slightly suspicious, Mr. Welmer refused him.

"Go into the back room," the man commanded, forcing a revolver against the druggist's body.

"I won't. I'm not afraid of you or your gun," Mr. Welmer replied. He seized the man by the wrists and forced him bodily out the door.

The man fled in a Buick sedan. The car is believed to be a local one. Police are searching for the car and its driver.

Buying $5 Bills Pays Profit While It Lasts

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 6—The fact that 17-year-old Charles Urbanas is in government custody must be blamed, federal agents said, on his diligence as a collector.

Once he had decided to become a collector, Charles hit upon money as a fine thing to collect, not content with collecting ordinary money, he went in for antiques. He advertised, the agents declared, for $5 bills dated prior to 1907, offering to pay up to $2,000 for them.

Then he sat back and watched old bills roll in until some of his customers complained he was a bit dilatory in paying for them.

It was then the government took cognizance of his collecting. He was held today to explain things to the federal grand jury.

3 LOCAL MEN PASS BAR TEST

Davis, Hazen and Sager Are Successful In State Examination.

TO BE SWORN IN SEPT. 11

624 of 852 Applicants Receive Passing Grades To Practice Law.

Three Marion men are among the 624 to pass the state bar examination in July, entitling them to practice law in Ohio, according to Associated Press dispatches from Columbus today.

They are William Ray Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Davis of 247 East Church street; W. Dexter Hazen of 704 Waples avenue, deputy probate judge; and Benjamin G. Sager, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Sager of Akron, and formerly of Marion.

Davis is a graduate of Harding High school and Ohio State university. He also attended Miami university. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta and Phi Delta Phi fraternities. His plans for the future are not definite.

To Continue Post

W. Dexter Hazen passed the examination after studying law in Marion. He graduated from Harding High school in 1916. He will continue to serve as deputy probate judge at present.

Benjamin G. Sager is a graduate of Western Reserve university at Cleveland, where he is now connected with the claim department of an insurance company. He graduated from Harding high school in 1924.

Six hundred twenty-four of the 852 applicants who took the state bar examination in July passed the tests and will be admitted to practice law in Ohio.

73 Per Cent. Pass

The percentage of successful applicants was 73, and of failures 27. The examination was held July 15, 16 and 17.

Max Pevaner of 2777 Lancashire road in Cleveland, received the highest grade with a average of 95.2 per cent while second honors went to Albert Stephen Close of Sandusky, with an average of 93.5 per cent.

Local successful applicants will probably be sworn in at Columbus in the supreme court chamber at 1 p. m. Sept. 11.

CHIROPRACTORS IN COURT

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 6—Trials of 12 of 21 chiropractors for alleged violation of the medical practice act will be held Sept. 19. Charges against six of them were dismissed yesterday and three others were convicted and fined $25 each. The court suspended the fines when they promised to get licenses.

TRANSFER OF GERMAN GROUP PASSES, 66-28

Leaders Fight Out Battle Behind Closed Doors at Bucyrus.

NEWSPAPER MEN BARRED

Change Will Become Effective in 1933 After General Methodist Conference.

Special To The Star

BUCYRUS, Sept. 6—Merger of the Central German Methodist conference with contiguous English Methodist conferences was approved here today at the annual meeting of the German group. The project carried by a vote of 66 to 28.

The merger will not become effective until 1933 after the general Methodist conference in 1932. The general conference will pass an enabling act at its meeting to pave the way for the merger.

Press Out of Meet

Leaders of the move to leave the German conference fought out the question with opponents of the move behind closed doors yesterday. All representatives of the press were barred. The trend of the debate and the questions brought up could not be learned.

For several years, leaders of the church have pointed out, there has been a general move in the German conference toward mergers with the English group. German services, it was said, are being conducted in only a small percentage of the old churches. A number of the larger churches already have left the conference while a number of others were planning to leave if the merger failed to carry at the Bucyrus meeting.

Approved By Commission

The merger was favorably reported by a commission appointed some time ago to consider steps necessary to effect the union.

Twenty charges, including the Prospect Street M. E. church in Marion will go to the Ohio conference of which Epworth and Wesley churches are members; 16 to the Indiana conference; 12 to the Northeast Ohio conference; 11 to the Detroit conference; six to the Michigan conference; four to the Kentucky conference; three to the Pittsburgh conference; two to the Northwest Indiana conference; one to the West Virginia conference, and one to the Central Tennessee conference, according to merger plans.

The conference will close here Sunday. Next year's meeting will be held at Pidgeon, Mich.

Will Says Annual Airplane Meet Becoming America's One Big Show; There's Always Something New To See

"Face Histing" and Scraps of McPhersons Offer Readers Amusement.

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I "Contact" from hither to thither. I sure did hate missing that big Air Show in Chicago. I think that is becoming to be the one great show we will have. Just think how it will grow in importance when everybody really goes to traveling by air, and its coming all the time. They have some big 32 passengers ships out here between Los Angeles and Frisco and they are full all the time.

There is really something to see at one of those shows. You take Automobile shows and all you have to do is to go in the show rooms in every town and you can see the same thing you can at a show, and they have them so perfected that about all that ever shows up new at a show is some new gangled Cigar lighter, or odd shape door knobs. But at an air show there is hundreds of entirely different models than you have ever seen before. Then to see fellows like Al Williams, the great Ex Naval Flyer (who they all say is one of the best in the world) and Jimmy Doolittle who can fly and land blind, only by using instruments and all the dozens of others. Now its a real show.

Can't Beat 'Em

You know I was reading the other day about the big Military air show they had held in England the other day, and they had a battle between an invading army of them, with the other side protecting the City, and with the speed and the altitude that the Bombing planes can make now, they found that it was almost impossible to keep them away. That is if they dident know they was coming. They say there has to be some way of detecting when they are coming so they can go up and be ready for em. As it is now by the time they leave the ground and get to an altitude of 18 and 20 thousand feet why they have lready dropped their bombs and gone. They have Bombers now that travel 175 miles an hour.

While we were up at Lake Tahoe in the heart of the Sierra Nevada Mountains we would see the mail planes sometimes going over the mountains. They had to get a high altitude to make it, and there is not much chance of landing if the old Put Put goes bluey, and they do that both ways in the night too. I tell you when you get an air mail letter from away out here, you just ought to stop and think what a chance a half dozen fine young men have taken with their lives to get you that letter there one, two or three days earlier. Gosh that's a risky old game over these mountains at night.

McPhersons Back

Well lets see what other shows we had lately. Out our way for the last few weeks Aimee and Ma McPherson have just about run the spotlight ragged. We can't find out if Aimee really did swing on Ma or not. Then to make the argument better why the "Face histing" entered into it. Ma said Aimee had her face re-upholstered, Aimee said she dident. Ma said that her (Ma's) nose was broken, Aimee said she broke it putting it in the Church's business, and in the meantime the Congregation never lost its faith. It was with em, nose or no nose, face or two faced, it dident matter. They went down to her beach House at Malibu, (by the way there's where all the Pajama Actorines cavort. Well it seems that Aimee had a beach House, and the Choir would go there and sing to her. Nobody sang to Ma but she never did stop denouncing. So us poor readers have just been abount run ragged trying to keep up with so many different developments

It seems that our various assortment of Clergymen, and Clergywomen, wont give one of the ordinary paying congregation a chance to make the front page. Bishop Cannon no more slows up, or remarries or does something, than Aimee and Ma are ready for a go, and speaking or Ma's why I havent communed with you since Ma Ferguson was defeated for the nomination,, and of course the election, for it was on the Democratic side, and Texas has about been cured of its last election's short sightedness. Democrats are coming back in the fold so fast and praying for forgiveness that it looks like a bargain sale.

Great Year For Printers

This fellow Sterling that beat Ma is a fine fellow. It took a good man to beat Ma. Got to give her and old Jim credit they come back mighty strong, and the large vote she received certainly showed that old Texas thinks a lot of old Gal yet. There has been an awful lot of people defeated this year in the primary. Everybody was running that could get some cards printed. It was a great year for the printers

We got an awful good man beat in Oklahoma for the Senate nomination, Wrightsman. But he was up against another case of too much opposition. It was our old time Senator Gore, the first blind man, (physically) to sit in the Senate. He lost out away back during one of those early Republican landslides. There is going to be a lot of changes in Washington when the boys gather after the next election. Democrats are going to make some big gains for the people are sore at Hoover because they had to go back to work and couldn't just make a living by buying a stock and selling it to the other fellow at a raise. Then him not giving em rain, has hurt him. Then the people will get all excited around November over wets and drys, and the law will stay like it is, and the thirsts will be quenched as usual, then the "Hooey" will die out till 32. Then we will have the same thing over again. Oh, hum!

LEGION MOVES UP DATE OF ELECTION

Bird-McGinnis Post To Hold First Nomination at Meeting Tuesday.

To conform with rulings made at the state legion convention this year, Bird-McGinnis Post. No. 162 will elect and install its officers a month earlier than usual this year.

First nomination for officers will be made Tuesday night, and second nomination and election will be made at the following meeting. Officers must be installed sometime between Oct. 1 and Oct. 20 to conform with installation dates of state and national legion officers.

Previously, individual posts throughout the state held election of officers on a variety of dates, and the planning and carrying out of a definite program for the fiscal year, beginning Oct. 20, was made difficult.

Legionnaires will spend another afternoon at McKinley park next Wednesday, raking the park lawns and assisting in the program mapped out by Dr. F. R. Mann, chairman of the park commission. Women of the neighborhood will prepare a picnic supper for the workmen.

Highest Christian Life

A SERMONETTE
BY REV. B. H. NICODEMUS,
Evangelist at First Church of the Brethren.

THE world's greatest need today is the revealing of the sons of God through Christian living. Jesus said "Ye are the Light of the world." Peter said, "Show forth the excellences of Him." There is no power equal to Christian personality and conduct. After all, religion is life and conduct; Christianity is a certain way of living. There are three statements which suggest to me the fullness of my subject:

The first one is this: "Not I, but Christ, the divine life." The "I" must be dethroned and "Christ" enthroned. This is the first great battle, the battle with self. Paul expressed the normal state of mind in these words: "I am crucified with Christ. Nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me."

Jesus Christ must become an abiding reality if we are to live abundantly and victoriously; if we are to be lights in the world.

The second statement is this: "Not mine, but thine, the consecrated life." The consecration of our bodies is a most heroic, Christian act. "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit, and ye are not your own? Ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your bodies, which are God's. I beseech you therefore by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice."

Consecration is the presentation of a redeemed, new born and inspired life unto God for humble, sacrificial service. It means to be separated unto the work of righteousness in the kingdom of God. This act covers the entire scope of our possessions and interests. God is the owner of us and all we possess, and we are only his trustees of these precious gifts. May we therefore consecrate them to Him through the proper investment and use of them.

The third statement is this: "Not I, but my Brother, the service life." No man liveth unto himself. Love seeketh not her own. Let no man seek his own, but each his neighbor's good. We are saved to serve." Jesus taught that humble service is man's highest attainment. God and our fellows are two objectives in the Christian religion. John makes it clear that if a man is a liar who claims to serve one, and not the other. Service is a manifestation of a living faith, and divine love.

According to Jesus it is this service that determines a man's destiny in eternity. Study the parable of the sheep and the goats. "Inasmuch as ye did it, or did it not, unto the least of these my brethren, ye did it, or did it not, unto me."

The progress and influence of the Christian church depends upon the standard of Christian character found in its membership. We should have no other ambition than to live the highest Christian life."

Police Chief Objects to Matrimonial Aid Plan

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 6—The chief of police of Midlothian, Mr. A. A. Terry, stubbed his toe, thereby doing himself a favor.

The chief had been chosen by Miss Lucyle Wilkinson, who spells it with a "Y" and her boy friend, Emil Keckner, as a man to wed. Lucyle and Emil's object was matrimony, but they were handicapped by lack of funds. Chief Terry was to supply the funds, whether he wanted to or not.

They went to him yesterday saying the body of a man was lying in a field on the outskirts. The chief leaped into his motorcar with them and they went to the field. While the officer was gazing around for the body, he stumbled and fell, which was fortunate, for just at that moment he was in a fair way of being bashed on the skull by Emil. The blow was grazing and Emil ran away, forgetting for the time being the purpose of attack, which was matrimony.

Lucyle lingered and Chief Terry, much perturbed, got up and arrested her.

"We didn't mean any harm," the 17-year-old Lucyle explained. "We thought if you got a little teeny weeny tonk on the head you wouldn't really mind very much, because we wanted to get married."

Chief Terry indicated he was not interested in whether they got married or didn't get married. What he was interested in principally today was to get his hands upon young Mr. Keckner, the basher.

MAIN STREET WORK TO END BY NOV. 15

Contractors Say Paving To Be Completed by That Time, or Before.

Unless hampered by unusually bad weather, contractors will complete the resurfacing of Main street between George street and Columbia street by Nov. 15, and possibly several days before that time, they said today.

Work was going forward at a rapid pace today. Abandoned street car rails have been drawn from the street from Columbia street as far north as the C., D. & M. Electric Co. offices. The east side of the street will probably be cut wider sometime today, to remove two slight jobs in the street at the southern end of the section to be improved.

A strip of concrete will be poured in the depression caused by the removal of the street car tracks and ties. P. Drake & Sons are constructing the street.

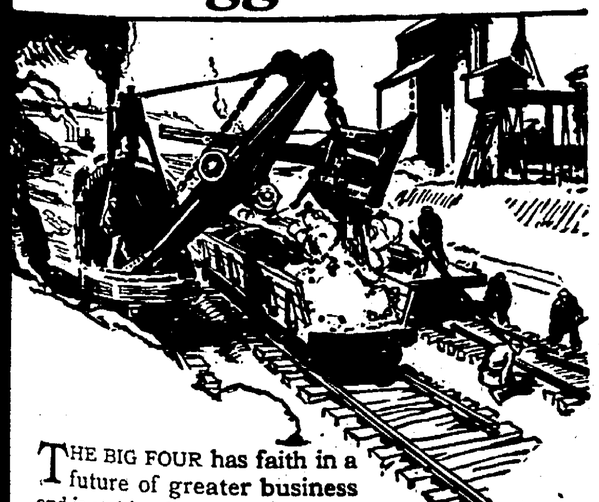
FAITH in a bigger future



THE BIG FOUR has faith in a future of greater business and is staking huge expenditures on that faith.

During the first seven months of this year the BIG FOUR spent over five million dollars on additions and improvements so that more and better service may be rendered.

This is 30% more than was spent during the same period of 1929, a year of exceptionally good business.

Periods of good business come and go, and the BIG FOUR is confident that better days are ahead for the people it serves.

COURT ACTION KEEPS PASTOR FROM PULPIT

Temporary Injunction Granted Cleveland Vestry in Salary Dispute.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 6—A temporary injunction will keep the Rev. Roy E. DePriest from the pulpit of St. John's Episcopal church, one of Cleveland's oldest houses of worship, for the next two Sundays.

Attorneys for the vestry obtained the injunction last night as the result of differences between the rector and the vestry over a proposed salary cut.

Rev. De Priest, vestry attorneys said, walked out of a meeting July 24, when it was proposed that his salary be reduced from $3,600 to $2,400 annually along with other decreases in the church budget.

The rector submitted a verbal resignation at that time, the vestry contends.

Rev. De Priest denied he had resigned, but said he left the meeting in "righteous indignation" when the salary decrease was proposed "after all the hard work I have done for the church."

He said the vestry acted contrary to all canonical procedure, but announced there would be no services pending a hearing on the injunction Sept. 15.

Elsie Janis Quits Stage; Started Here

MORE than 25 years a child prodigy made her appearance as an entertainer on the stage on the old Park theater at the Marion county fairgrounds. That appearance in a juvenile part led to stage fame on two continents and in many countries of the world for the youthful actress, Miss Elsie Janis, the daughter of the former Marion residents. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. John Beerbower. Janis being her mother's malden name.

Today Elsie Janis announced that she was through with the stage forever—after a career of 25 years, an Associated Press dispatch said. The announcement was made from Los Angeles where Miss Janis is writing under contract for the motion picture industry.

• • •

THE recent death of her mother, Mrs. Josephine Janis, was given by Miss Janis as her reason for foregoing the footlights. Her mother's death broke up a mother-daughter companionship that was considered notable in theatrical circles.

Miss Janis not only won fame before the footlights, but she will be remembered by thousands of veterans of the World war as the charming girl who endured many hardships to entertain them in army camps.

In announcing her decision to quit the stage Miss Janis said, "I could not quit the stage as long as mother was with me. Now that she has gone away I have decided to do the thing I long have wanted to do—write".

PARIS—Clement Vautel, who conducts a column in Le Journal, would rather see historic French buildings crumble than be restored with American cash. Nothing minimizes the prestige of France as much as these gifts."

COMMUNIST TICKET PETITIONS REJECTED

Democrats and Republicans Expected To Be Alone on Ohio Ballot.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 6—With Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown rejecting the proposed state ticket of the Communist party of the United States, indications today are that the Democratic and Republican state tickets will be the only ones appearing on the November ballot this year.

The list of Communist candidates for state offices, accompanied by petitions containing the signatures of about 16,000 alleged voters, was presented at the secretary of state's office late Friday by E. S. Johnson of Cleveland, an organizer for the Communist party.

Brown pointed out that these signatures represent less than one per cent of the vote cast at the last general election while the laws of Ohio require that such signatures shall amount to at least 15 per cent, according to a ruling of the attorney general.

Johnson charged that authorities interferred with the work of persons who were circulating the Communist petitions and that, in some cases, petitions were confiscated.

Communists are scheduled to hold a statewide conference here Sunday.

Missing N. Y. Justice Reported in Canada

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—A report that Joseph F. Crater, missing supreme court justice, was seen last Wednesday near the Canadian border, held the attention of police today.

A woman resident of Rouse's Point, N. Y., on the border, who said she had seen the missing justice there, declared she could point him out to searchers. A city detective now in Canada on other business was instructed to investigate.

A published report that the justice, who dropped from sight a month ago, had been found by friends in a lonely cabin near Montreal was denied by friends here and scouted by police.

Ohio Winter Wheat Four Per Cent Under 1929

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 6—Ohio's intended acreage of winter wheat will show a reduction of four per cent under last year according to a survey announced here today by G. S. Ray, federal agricultural statistician.

The survey indicates farmers' intentions for planting as given on August 15 and ranks Ohio close to the nation's average of 4.5 percent decrease.

Nearly all states show a decrease over the 1929 plantings. A notable exception is Washington which predicts a 50 percent increase.

Burl Emerson Removed from Hospital to Home After X-Ray Examination.

The condition of Burl Emerson, who accidentally shot himself yesterday afternoon at his home at 750 Fairfield street, is believed to be not as serious as it was expected, following an X-ray examination last night at the offices of Dr. A. A. Starner, the attending physician.

A double-barreled shotgun which Emerson says he was carrying to shoot rats, discharged shot into his left side when he dropped it soon after leaving the house yesterday. The wound is not as serious as was feared yesterday. His condition is not considered serious today. He was removed from City hospital to the Starner offices and later to his home, in the M. H. Gunder invalid car.

He pleaded however, that the money was not taken with criminal intent, but was used while he was ill and threatened with a nervous breakdown. The trial committee after the hearing, suspended the minister from the ministry and the conference until restitution is made.

FORD PREDICTS BUSINESS RISE

Early End of Depression Forecast as He Starts for Europe.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—Sailing aboard the liner Bremen for a six weeks' business and pleasure trip to Europe, Henry Ford predicted an early end to the present business depression.

He said the depression might outlast October, but that business now was better than two years ago. He ascribed the growing prosperity to the people substituting "thinking" for speculating.

He said he would combine business and pleasure on his trip and he, Mrs. Ford and the party of three who were accompanying them, would motor through France and Germany, stopping at the Ford factory at Cologne. The others in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hodges of Detroit, and E. G. Liebold, his secretary.

The party had boarded the North German liner by a lower gangplank and the fact that Mr. Ford intended to sail was not disclosed to newspapermen until after he was aboard. He then received them in his suite.

Asked his opinion on politics and prohibition, he said no politics existed in America today and that prohibition was here to stay. "Except for a damp spot here and there," he said, "America is dry."

Questioned as to the truth of reports that the Ford company planned the manufacture of six cylinder cars, he said:

"I've got more important news for you than that. I'm building a hotel."

"What for?" he was asked.

"For rumors," he said, spelling out the last word.

There are ninety-four cities in the United States with populations in excess of 100,000 each against sixty-eight such cities twenty years ago. Our cities are certainly growing bigger and bigger, but that's hardly a guarantee that they are getting bigger and better, as is said in the advance notices of our county fair, year after year.

The Spanish city of Murcia experienced two earthquakes, which came almost five hours apart, a day or two ago. Old Mother Nature should realize that that is spreading on the terror rather thick.

Washington reports that more than 6,425,000 hunting and fishing licenses were issued in the United States during the wild game season of 1928-29, the revenue derived from the licenses by the various states of the union being $9,300,000. It would be interesting to know how much this sum exceeded the market value of the game shot and the fish hooked.

Divers working on the Peninsular and Oriental liner, Egypt, which sank in the Mediterranean eight years ago, have brought up the ship's mail and its silverware and penetrated within dynamiting distance of the purser's strong box containing $5,000,000 in gold coin and gold and silver bars. If they are able to bring the treasure up, it will stand as an authenticated case of "extracting gold from the sea."

It is announced that, despite the drought, there will not be a milk shortage in the United States. The odd phase of the thing is that the prediction is not based on the showing of a nominal milk production, because production hasn't been normal, but on the decreased purchasing power of families and a belief that dairy products are fattening and therefore to be avoided by those who would retain slenderness. And here we thought that the "corn feds" were coming into their own!

A Third of a Century After.

After almost a third of a century the manner in which the three members of the Andree Arctic balloon party met their fates has been disclosed. Two note books found on the remains of the leader of the expedition disclose that Knut Frankel, the third member of the party, the way of whose fate was unknown until the discovery of the books by government scientists upon the arrival of Dr. Gunnar Horn's party and its finds at Tromsoe, Norway, died on the journey from the scene of the wrecking of the balloon to White island, where the remains of Andree and Nils Strindberg, Andree's scientific worker, were found. Strindberg died next and was buried by Andree, who then reclined against a nearby ledge, where he awaited the coming of death.

The scientists found that the adventurous scientist, evidently realizing that death was near at hand, took every possible precaution that the fate of the party might become known to the world in the event of the chance discovery of his body. He wrapped his records in his shirt, placed them on his back next his skin and then laid down on them, giving them the extra protection afforded by his body and his clothing.

Thirty-three years have elapsed since Salomon August Andree thus prepared to meet death in the Far North, yet one can not contemplate the fates suffered by him and his two companions without feeling the horror of the tragedy as though it were one of but yesterday, a feeling which is bound to be accentuated as the full story of the battle of the three against the snow, and the ice, and the Arctic cold is revealed when the records of Andree are made public. The three challenged fate, it is true, but the ends which came to them are not a whit the less saddening on that account.

The Irony of Fate.

It was the irony of fate that, just as Santo Domingo had begun to enjoy a greater prosperity than it had previously known in 400 years, it was swept by the most terrific West Indian hurricane in decades and suffered the leveling of its capital and chief city.

Santo Domingo, or the Dominican republic as it is now officially known, occupies the eastern two-thirds of the island of Haiti. It has an area of 19,300 square miles and its population was estimated in 1927 at 1,022,455. The island of which it is a part was discovered by Columbus on his first voyage, and its capital, located on the south coast at the mouth of the Ozama river, was at one time the metropolis of the Western hemisphere. Founded in 1496, the city of Santo Domingo has the distinction of being the oldest existing city settled by whites in the New world.

Despite the fact that Santo Domingo is located in the very heart of the West Indian hurricane belt and had suffered mighty hurricanes in 1920, 1923, 1925, 1926 and 1928, that of the last year named having been unusually severe, with heavy life and property losses, the foreign trade of the republic doubled during the last ten or twelve years, and last year the country was beginning to enjoy real prosperity for the first time in four centuries.

And now this week's catastrophe with a life loss in its capital city of 2,000, at least 5,000 injured, 9,600 homes destroyed, 30,000 of its 41,000 population rendered homeless and an estimated property loss of $20,000,000! What the life and property loss outside the city of Santo Domingo may be is as yet not known, but if the solidly-built-and-massed structures of the city could not withstand the force of the hurricane, it is hardly probable that isolated homes in the provinces escaped its fury.

It is good to know that every assistance possible is being rendered the unfortunates, this country using all the resources at its command to render speedy succor in the way of food, medicines, medical and surgical aid, nursing and temporary shelter, but even so the suffering is bound to be appalling.

But what was the misfortune of the Dominicans probably proved the salvation of Cuba and possibly that of Florida, for the eighty-mile mountain range forming the backbone of Santo Domingo, which is the highest in the West Indies, some of its peaks having an altitude of 10,000 feet, is said to have proved a buttress against which the storm battered itself and was broken.

Eighty-seven per cent. of the 175 dramatic productions which opened in New York City between August 1, 1929, and July 1, 1930, were regarded as failures. The Billboard is silent on the subject in its annual tabulation, but it may be said that about eighty-seven per cent. of the remaining thirteen per cent. weren't anything to brag about.

Municipal Court Judge John H. Lyle, of Chicago, this week sentenced two notorious gangsters of that city to jail for six months for vagrancy. What not only Chicago, but also all the country, needs is more Judges Lyle.

"Is It Worth the Price?"

Reciting the fact that four persons were killed and fourteen injured at the recent national air races, among the injured being Major MacReady, one of the greatest aviators of all time, and the killed being two navy aviators, one of them being an ace among the navy's fliers, one an airplane inventor and the fourth an air-minded spectator, the Washington Star asks: "Is it worth the price?"

Conceding that the races brought out a great number of spectators; that a new altitude record was probably made; that the fastest speed ever recorded at such a meet was attained and that the air-minded had a splendid opportunity to study the operation of the latest types of airplanes, the Star answers its own question by concluding that a careful appraisal of all the factors proves that wholesale slaughter is not a necessary accompaniment of progress in aviation; in a word, that the races aren't worth the price.

The Washington editor might have asked a like question regarding the recent balloon race. True, all the entrants landed without life loss or injury in this year's race, but such has not always been the record in balloon races.

And what is to be gained from them?

It has been urged that they are aids to aviation in that the training gained in ballooning tends to fit one for the skilful handling of blimps and dirigibles. Possibly so. A knowledge of how to strike a friendlier current of air by letting out gas or throwing out ballast might prove valuable, but this same knowledge could be far better gained in a powered airship. In this age of the plane, the rigid dirigible and the blimp, a balloon, which is subject to every current of air it encounters, holds just about the same relative position to up-to-date means of air travel as an ox-cart does to our fastest racing motor cars.

A French cable states that an aviatrix over there broke the women's endurance record by remaining up in the air for thirty-eight hours. Huh! We know women who have been up in the air the big end of their lives.

Do not take it for granted that tomorrow night's will be the harvest moon. There's always a chance of slipping up on the harvest moon proposition.

Will Rogers wanted to bet that Coste and Bellonte would land in Fort Worth instead of Dallas because they would "naturally be looking for the biggest town." He evidently overlooked the fact that they would have to go to Dallas to get that stake of $25,000 which naturally would look bigger to French eyes than either town.

Although he has to support only seven of his nineteen children, the others having either attained their majorities or died, Paul Ellis, of Chicago, has experienced difficulty during the past period of depression in meeting his alimony obligations, with the result that his ninth wife has found it necessary to sue him for $113 she claims is due her and unpaid. Paul should have himself incorporated as an eleemosynary institution.

Editorial Opinion.

THE FLIGHT OF THE DO-X.

Passengers on the projected Atlantic flight of the famous Dornier flying boat will have the unique experience of riding in the air by day and spending at least one night on the heaving open ocean in the same craft if present plans are carried out. The DO-X, as Dr. Claudius Dorner's revolutionary ship is technically named, is the biggest airplane of any type ever constructed. It has accommodations for 100 passengers, and with its twelve motors developing more than 7,000 horsepower it flashes through the air at a top speed of 140 miles an hour. In a test on Lake Constance about a year ago, the DO-X, carried 162 persons, took the air in thirteen seconds and stayed up more than an hour with its load of approximately sixty tons.

The Atlantic flight, which is scheduled to begin early next month, will be an ambitious and daring attempt of the plane's designer to prove that the DO-X possesses to a safe degree both seaworthy and airworthy qualities. And in order to do this a midocean stop between Bermuda and the Azores will be attempted with the huge plane riding out the night on King Neptune's broad swells. A boat has already been chartered to meet the plane at a designated spot between the islands. From this vessel the DO-X will take on gasoline and oil for an early start the following morning.

While the number of passengers and crew on the epochal voyage have not been determined, it is a certainty that all who are lucky enough to participate will have an interesting experience. Dr. Dorner's idea is that huge planes of this type, flying to America by way of the Azores and with enough stops to make the carrying of large quantities of fuel unnecessary, would make a commercial service entirely feasible. The small amount of gasoline and oil necessary for short hops would permit a correspondingly greater pay load in both freight and passengers.

Dr. Dorner's creation has already demonstrated its air ability. This experiment will show whether it can be rated equally seaworthy. The DO-X designer claims that the ship can ride almost any sea if it takes the waves head on, but is skeptical of the result, not to the body but to the wings, should a huge sea be taken broadside. When the DO-X anchors to its mother ship on the Atlantic some time next month this most important point can be determined. A 157-foot wingspread would seem to afford a tempting surface for playfulness by the waves and it can not but be felt that dire results will follow should one of the wingtips take on a half a ton or so of water. Regardless of all this, however, an expectant world is awaiting the flight across the Atlantic of this huge vessel of the air.—Washington Star.

War and the Horse.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

General I. R. Sherwood who was not only a distinguished soldier of the civil war, but all his life a lover of horses, philosophized interestingly regarding the horse and the civil war. It was toward the close of his life when he was still a member of congress that he took his first automobile ride, and it was evidence that he took little interest in that mode of transportation that he never owned an automobile, but maintained both riding and driving horses as long as he was able to use them.

The general was inclined to credit much to the horse for the winning of the civil war by the North, and to the North for having the ability to produce horses for war use practically without limit. However, the northern army, in his opinion, was not so dependent upon the horse as was the army of the South. He quoted a statement made by Basil Duke, of Louisville, himself a distinguished confederate cavalry leader, to the effect that when the confederate government's supply of horses should come to an end, the cause in effect would be lost. He explained that what he meant was that there was glory in the horses and horsemanship for the white man of the South, and the use of the horse in war gave an added glory to military service.

There was a difference between the soldiers of the North and those of the South in this matter, he pointed out. There was something about pedestrianism as the southern white man saw it that was distinctly beneath his dignity. It had been thought so for many decades. The effect of it was that the southern white man, no matter how strong his sentiment might be, would not make a foot soldier with the lasting qualities of the northern infantry units.

In General Sherwood's opinion the greatest war poem growing out of the civil war was T. Buchanan Read's "Sheridan's Ride," his horse, Rienzi, sharing in the glory of the wild ride to Winchester.

A Few Minor Delinquencies.

One of the outstanding defects of inadequately financed summer resorts in the woods is that there is seldom enough ice, enough mosquito netting, enough porch swings or enough matting on the floor. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Common Ills of Baby.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Little babies have a great many things to bother them. They have ailments, some big, some little. Vomiting is a symptom indicating that something is wrong.

Anything that interferes with comfortable digestion, that "upsets the stomach," usually produces vomiting. Scarlet fever and many other diseases of childhood begin with vomiting.

Mothers are happy just so long as baby is normal and well. When its eating and sleeping are interfered with by indigestion then everybody is unhappy.

It is a common thing for a young baby to vomit shortly after eating. Only a few minutes after feeding some of the food is expelled. This the mother does not worry about.

But vomiting a quantity of sour material as much as an hour after feeding is quite another matter. The chances are that the baby has been overfed or has been fed too fast. If so the stomach was overcrowded and naturally the excess material was thrown off.

The milk or food mixture may be the best in the world. But if a child gulps it down hurriedly in its hungry eagerness, vomiting is sure to follow.

Perhaps the rubber nipple has too large a hole in it. If that is the case the bottle could be emptied in five minutes, which is altogether too short a time for a baby to be fed. A quarter of an hour is not too much time for the baby to take its food.

When the hole in the nipple is too small it might take half an hour for feeding. In its efforts to get the milk the child swallows a quantity of air. Of course, it will vomit in such a case.

Too much fat, or cream, in the milk may be responsible for your baby's vomiting. This is rather a common cause for trouble.

The bottle-fed baby needs a certain amount of sugar in its food. Milk sugar or corn sugar is the best. Most authorities do not favor cane sugar for this purpose.

Of course, some babies seem to thrive in spite of the vomiting. You can not be sure that the sugar is the cause of frequent vomiting. But it would be wise to change to another kind if cane sugar has been used.

Whenever a baby has more than the mildest form of vomiting it is wise to have a doctor see what is wrong. Do not wait too long. Some slight change in feeding may make everything all right. You will be doing the wise thing for your child if you take expert advice.

Oceanic Air Lines.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The nineteenth century was the age of the locomotive, the Atlantic cable, the electric bulb, the telephone and the telegraph. The twentieth century is the age of the motor car, of wireless transmission, of aviation. Some time ago, Marconi prophesied that radio would prove one of the most effective instrumentalities for the promotion of peace between nations. Lindbergh suggests that universal airway communication bids fair to usher in a new era of international commerce and agreement.

As the world becomes more and more air-minded, distance will fall into its true perspective. Imagination rather than fact at present controls our mind in this respect. It is not generally sensed that the Panama canal is more than a thousand miles closer to New York than is San Francisco. Venezuela is not so far from Manhattan as New Mexico or Oregon! We must begin to think in terms of miles, rather than of misguided fancy.

The era upon which we are now entering will be the second phase of air conquest. The problems to be overcome are now being analyzed by experts. And it is plainly seen that these problems can be easily solved, by patience, ingenuity and organization. Recent episodes show that an important factor in safety in flight, especially in trans-oceanic and trans-continental flight, is radio communication and control. It seems highly probable that, by the development of radio in connection with aviation and the working out of new schedules and air lines on a scientific basis, air transportation will be perfected for movement from any point to any other point, without the aid or mediation of any form of surface transportation whatever.

There is a steady drive now toward the development of international air transportation. The annihilation of distance, the diminution of elapsed time in transit from point to point, indicate the building up of a stronger spirit of international comity.

Intercommunication between nations on a basis of friendly travel, trade and commerce promises to be an important factor in promoting the cause of world peace. It was Hazlitt who said that we can not hate any one we know.

The twentieth century as has been pointed out, brings a third dimension in transportation to the world. "The airplane and the airship are placing time and distance on a new scale of relativity. • • • The airplane augments rather than replaces ground transport. Its mission is to simplify intercourse between countries by rapid transportation of passengers and documents, to bring us in closer contact with other people and to facilitate the negotiations necessary for mutual understanding and trade."—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

"The Place of Sweet Lagoons."

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Off the southeast coast of China, opposite the province of Kwang-tung, there lies an island, which translated from the Chinese, whence it derives its name, means "The Place of Sweet Lagoons." To the outside world it is better known as Hong Kong.

Hong Kong is an important British island possession and forms a part of what the Portuguese call the Ladrones, or Thieves, because of the notorious habits of their old inhabitants. Under the Peking treaty of 1860 the peninsula of Kowloon was added to Hong Kong, which first passed under British rule when it was ceded in 1841. A governor appointed by the British government rules the territory.

Of course, the natives outnumber the Europeans, the proportion being about twenty to one. The civil administration, that is, the police, are largely native, officered by British in the higher places. The schools likewise are administered by Europeans largely British.

Hong Kong, or Victoria Harbor as it is also known, constantly presents an animated appearance, as there is a steady stream of vessels coming in and going out. The town is built in three layers. The Praya, or esplanade, fifty feet wide, is given up to shipping. The main commercial street runs inland parallel with the Praya, and presents an animated appearance with varied forms of peddlers and street merchants. Considerable business is done by these itinerant merchants, especially in the fruits, after the fashion of the fruit stands in the United States.

Beyond the commercial portion of the city, on each side of it, lives the second layer, the Chinese quarters, where the population is packed in tightly. Finally the third layer, known as "The Peak," and reached by a cable railway is dotted over with private houses and bungalows. It is here that the governor has his residence.

Hong Kong has a reputation for being rather free and easy, especially among the seafaring class, but the visitor will find it on the whole a pretty law-abiding community and a highly interesting place.

Mrs. Whitney was the immediate objective of the robbers when they surprised the party. One of the bandits started tearing her ornaments from her until she exclaimed, "I'll give you everything if you won't harm us." Then they allowed her to hand over the valuables.

Besides the ring, 15 carets in size, Mrs. Whitney lost five bracelets and a necklace. One of the other women was allowed to keep her necklace, comparatively modest in value.

Take Keys of Car

The bandits also demanded the keys of the Whitney car, which they carried off with them to prevent immediate pursuit. The Evanston police were notified by telephone and flashed word of the robbery to Chicago. A radio alarm sent 15 squad cars to Sheridan road in an effort to intercept the bandits.

Besides the Whitneys, Mrs. Mehan and Hewett, the party included Mr. and Mrs. Oliver A. Blackburn. Mr. Blackburn is secretary of the Kraft-Phenix corporation.

Marriages of Two Marion Girls Are Solemnized Here at Lovely Weddings Today

THE marriage of Miss Anne Lacey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lacey of 654 Windsor street, and Eugene Van Keuren Jr., son of Eugene Van Keuren of Brooklyn, N. Y., was solemnized this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Catholic church. Rev. William J. Spickerman, pastor, read the ceremony and was the celebrant at the low nuptial mass. The wedding, which was one of the loveliest of the year, was followed by a reception and breakfast for 50 guests in the ballroom at Hotel Harding.

Palms banked the sanctuary and the altar was adorned with gold vases holding gladioli in peach shade, and artemisia. Tall wicker baskets filled with gladioli and blue delphinium stood at each side of the entrance to the sanctuary.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Lucille Conarty played a program of wedding music including "Dream Love" by Rudolf Friml, "Largo" by Handel, and during the services "Eventide" by M. L. Preston, "Slumber Song" by Mana-Zurca and "Berceuse" by Kern. During the mass John Lacey, brother of the bride, sang "On This Day Oh Beautiful Mother," "Ave Maria" by Millard and "Jesus the Only Thought of Thee." For the processional Miss Conarty played the "Wedding March" from Lohengrin, and for the recessional Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

The bride's gown was a Lanvin model in white satin and her wedding veil of tulle was fashioned in a Madonna shape held with a chin strap caught at each side with orange blossoms. The gown was made in a semi-princess style with long sleeves and the long skirt was finished with a wide band of tulle. A knot of French flowers caught the narrow belt at the waistline in front and a narrow band of tulle finished the v-shaped neck. Her slippers were of white satin. She carried a white satin prayer book showered with ribbon and valley lilies and her only ornaments were a strand of pearls and a platinum ring set with diamonds, the latter a gift of the bridegroom.

The attendants were Misses Frances Lacey and Corinne Lacey, sisters of the bride, and Margaret Van Keuren, sister of the bridegroom. They wore satin gowns by Patou, fashioned in lines similar to that of the bridal gown, with small puff sleeves and narrow belts held at the waistline with rhinestone ornaments. Miss Frances Lacey, who attended her sister as maid of honor, was gowned in a peach shade and Miss Corinne Lacey and Miss Van Keuren the bridesmaids, were in gowns of turquoise blue, with pumps in harmonizing shades, carrying out the bride's colors. All wore velvet hats in a peach shade trimmed in small velvet flowers of the same color and peach shade mitts. Miss Lacey carried an arm bouquet of Mensing roses and blue delphinium tied with ribbon in rainbow colors and the bridesmaids bouquets were Talisman roses showered with peach colored satin ribbons. Fred C. Lacey, brother of the bride, was Mr. Van Keuren's best man and the ushers were Frank Bowe and Albert St. Germaine.

Baskets of fall flowers decorated the ballroom at Hotel Harding for the reception and breakfast and the long table was centered with the bride's cake and baskets of flowers carried out a color note in peach shades and turquoise blue.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Keuren will spend their honeymoon in Bermuda and upon their return will make their home at 2652 East Eighteenth street, Brooklyn. The bride wore for traveling a knitted suit in gray and black with a pointed fox scarf. A gray felt hat and black gloves, pumps and purse completed her costume.

Mrs. Van Keuren attended St. Mary's parochial school and Mr. Van Keuren attended Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, graduating from the department of mechanical engineering.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon of West New York, N. J., Mrs. A. Brunning of Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Ella McGraw, Miss Amelia Conradt, Mrs. Josephine Wood and Robert Wood of Cleveland, Eugene Van Keuren of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. George Day Jr., of Ashtabula.

Miss Charlotte Kramer became the bride of Delbert R. Thrush in a quiet wedding solemnized today at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Kramer of Vernon Heights boulevard. They will spend their honeymoon in the east.

CHARMING in its simplicity was the marriage of Miss Charlotte Kramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Kramer of 565 Vernon Heights boulevard, and Delbert Richard Thrush, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Thrush of 295 Davids street, which was solemnized this morning at 10:45 o'clock at the home of the bride.

Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, read the single ring service and the couple exchanged their vows in the presence of only the immediate families and close friends. Fall flowers and greenery arranged on the landing at the foot of the stairway in the livingroom formed an attractive background for the ceremony. They were unattended.

The bride wore a gown of angel blue chiffon made with closefitting lines and long sleeves. The long full skirt fell in an uneven hemline and the gown was held at the waistline with a narrow belt caught with a rhinestone buckle. A narrow bertha caught in a v-shape neck graduated to a cape in the back. Moire slippers in the same shade as the gown completed the costume and she carried a bridal bouquet of Columbia roses and gypsophelia tied with a tulle bow showered with lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony a three-course wedding breakfast was served, covers being placed for 24. The bride's table was centered with a basket of orchid asters and greenery carrying out her bridal colors, and smaller bouquets in the same tones centered the smaller tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Thrush will spend their honeymoon in the east and will visit the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Locke in Syracuse, N. Y., before returning home. Mrs. Thrush wore for traveling a brown suit with a blouse and accessories in egg shell shade. They will be at home after Oct. 1 at 282 Bellefontaine avenue.

SYNOPSIS

Jack Winslow, adopted son of Arnold Winslow, wealthy retired lawyer of Washington, D. C., is in love with Elsa Chase, beautiful crippled girl, guest at the Winslow home. The elder Winslow, suspecting Elsa is not all she pretends to be, wants to prevent the marriage, and seeks the services of G. Thorne, private detective, to learn more of Elsa's past. A mysterious woman in blue has been seen several times talking to Elsa. Winslow brings Dr. Paul Kane, noted surgeon, to examine Elsa, who seems panic-stricken at the idea of an examination. She consents, however. Later that night Kane is found dead on the ground under his upstairs bathroom window. The coroner starts an investigation, and meanwhile the elder Winslow and Thorne find that the door of the upstairs bathroom from which Kane fell to his death is locked. Thorne peers through the keyhole with a small periscope.

* * *

A Key Comes to Light

THORNE'S pocket periscope gave him a good view of the interior of the bathroom. It was little larger than a closet in size; to the right of the locked door was a sunken bath tub; to the left the poreclain washstand and across from the door was the low window, which, with its diamond-paned sashes both opened inward, was admitting a draught of cold air.

"The electric light is still burning in there," Thorne remarked. "Have you a ladder?"

Winslow crossed the bedroom to the north window, opened it and looked out. Within hailing distance Ferguson and his assistant gardener were spreading rich soil over some of the rose beds, and cupping his hands Winslow called to Ferguson.

"Bring a ladder and climb up into the window by the dogwood tree," directed Winslow. "Get into the bathroom and open the door for us. Be quick."

The injunction was hardly needed. Thorne had only time to examine the contents of the dead man's bill folder before he heard Ferguson clambering through the window of the bathroom;; a second later the door between the rooms swung inward. Winslow's hand went instinctivyle to the electric switch to turn off the light.

"Leave it alone," Thorne spoke from the window where he was examining the low window casement.

Thorne glanced back at Ferguson and his nondescript clothing, then his eyes left his face, partly covered by the week-old beard, and traveled down to the man's feet and his muddy tracks in a direct line from the window to the tub.

"Stand still." The detective came closer and stooped down, pointing as he did so, to Ferguson's right boot. Sticking out from a hole in the heavy rubber sole was a small mud-covered object. Thorne pulled it out with a jerk, then rubbed off the mud—a door key lay in his hand. With one searching glance along the floor, he swung over to the door and tried it in the lock.

"It fits!" he exclaimed, and closed the door, but while the key turned the lock, the lock failed to catch.

"The house has settled and the key won't lock the door any longer," Winslow broke his long silence. "So my wife had Ferguson, who's handy with tools, put this brass bolt on the bathroom door. That's how it was fastened just now." He wheeled on Ferguson. "How did that key get caught in your boot?"

Ferguson shook a bewildered head. "I dunno, sir."

Thorne and Winslow then returned to Winslow's den, and Elsa Chase's nurse was sent for.

"Miss Kline," Winslow pronounced her name with so much emphasis that the nurse looked at him in some astonishment. "You are quite sure that the news of Dr. Kane's death has not reached your patient?"

"I am certain it hasn't," she replied, with equal earnestness. "Miss Chase slept late this morning, and she has seen no one but me so far."

With that the detective quietly left the room. His destination was Dr. Kane's bedroom, but he turned to the right instead of the left on leaving the den and did not realize his mistake until he reached the circular staircase. The faint whirring sound made by rubber wheels rolling over a hardwood floor caused him to look over the stair railing into the reception hall below. As Elsa Chase came into sight in her invalid chair, he hesitated perceptibly; from where he stood he could judge nothing of her face or features as her head was bent forward in her endeavor to find out what caused the unusual squeak in her smooth running chair. When she looked up again it was to find Thorne at her elbow.

"Can I be of service?" he asked.

For an instant she looked at him, startled, then her lips parted in a quick bright smile, showing her pretty teeth and still prettier dimples. "If you have an oil can, yes."

"Unfortunately," his smile matched hers, 'my oil can is in my car; I'll gladly get it," he made a motion toward the front door and checked himself, "later. In the meantime, may we talk?"

Her lips still smiled, but her eyes had grown watchful. "Of course," graciously: "but, who is 'we'?"

"May I wheel you over there?" asked Thorne, nodding toward a settee in one corner, and taking her consent for granted he pushed the chair across the hall. It was not until he was comfortably seated that he drew out his bill fold and laid one of his business cards in her lap.

"The Universal Detective Agency," she repeated thoughtfully, then meeting his dark eyes: "Are you Mr. Thorne?"

"Yes." Following the monosylabic reply, the detective's hands strayed to his package of cigarettes, and he half drew it out;. Elsa caught the motion.

"Please smoke," she exclaimed, "and I will kep you company. Now Mr. Thorne, why are you here? Officially—or as a guest?"

"By invitation." Thorne stretched out his long legs into a more comfortable position: "after the death of Dr. Kane."

"What!" she exclaimed. "What are you talking about?"

"Dr. Kane's death.' The detective's eyes never left her. "Had you not heard of it?"

She shook her head dumbly. "No," she mumbled. "Dr. Kane dead; why, it's unbelievable! Surely you are fooling me?"

"With what object?" A rapier-like glance passed between the blue eyes and the black; Thorne was the first to shift his gaze; it fell on her hands, beautifuly shaped, with slender, artistic fingers. "You find the news of the doctor's death very shocking?"

"Oh, yes"; a trifle wildly. "I—I saw him last night, barely 12 hours ago; he seemed so well then." Suddenly she closed her eyes and a few tears forced themselves through the hot lids.

To Be Continued.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

I WAS glad today was Saturday. When it begins to get near school time a fella begins to be glad for the Saturdays. I was glad it was this Saturday instead of next Saturday, because next Saturday is the end of vacation. I had to go downstairs in my shirt tail for my clothes which my mother had had to wash the watermelon juice out of after I had been sent to bed. I got into my short britches and went out to the barn to milk the cows, and none of the bunch came but Hopper. Hopper is our crip and he don't do anything like throwing melon rinds at anyone.

When I went in to feed my face he went in with me, and then Younis and Maggie and Feeble came and my mother set them down at the kitchen table and gave them some watermelon. My ant said the children I go with are a lot of little ruffians and she don't want me to play with them any more. I told her I had to play with someone. My mother said of course I did, but she said she would have to admit that for a little while last night she would have liked to have played with them, and if she had they wouldn't have sot down comfortable for a while.

When we had tooken the cows out we all went back to Hopper's house and Hopper's mother is a big woman and she always likes to see us. When Hopper went out to show the girls some young pigeons that have been hatched she put her arm around me and said she wished poor little Hopper was like the rest of us, and I thought of the watermelon rinds in the air and I said we would all be better if we were like Hopper, and she pulled me up ticht and kissed me. I was glad the girls weren't there. Then she wiped her eyes and smiled and I went out to the barn where the pigeons are and we found a lot of hen eggs and took them down to the duck pond and made a fire and found a can and started to boil the eggs. The water was dirty but none of the water gets in the eggs so that didn't matter. Just when they were about done someone yoo-hooed and there was the bunch up on the railroad track with their hands full of rocks and they began to throw, and we hiked up the hill toardst the house, and they knocked the can off the fire and busted the eggs, and that made me so mad that me and Jubilee chaseted them down the track.

I was going to give them all what was coming to them, but by the time I caught up with them we were out of sight of the girls and too tired to fight so we went swimming out back of the poorhouse. A fella can't stay mad all the time

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Comes Through with Flying Colors.

AT Dicky's ultimatum my mental temperature began a journey toward the zero mark. He evidently was determined to force the issue of my wearing his flowers or those of Philip Veritzen to Mary's party, although he apparently had forgotten the choler which had been his a few moments before at overhearing my colloquy with my employer.

I was facing now, I knew, what Harry Underwood would have laughingly described as a "crew-w-ci-al moment." But I am afraid that my spirit was aroused not so much by the fear—absurd, but poignant—that the future welfare of Noel and Mary might hang on my decision, as by the knowledge that Edith Fairfax was responsible for Dicky's cognizance of Philip Veritzen's plan.

I was able, however, to let my common sense rule my resentment, and I threw my little grenade with a smiling face.

"May I ask where you secured this apparently exclusive information about my wearing Mr. Veritzen's flowers?"

Edith's Shrine

Dicky is never Machiavellian, and therefore is easily caught off guard. At my question he started, and, patently forgetting the important fact that he had overheard Mr. Veritzen ask me if I had decided whose flowers I meant to wear, he blurred out: "Why, Ede——" then stopped short, his face crimsoning with angry chagrin.

"Exactly," I said coolly. "I knew she would as soon as she heard of Mr. Veritzen's plan to send flowers to all the women of the party, old and young. But really, Dicky, I acquitted you of failing for her little scheme until you telephoned me."

"What scheme?" Dicky growled.

"To force me into a position where I should have to decide either to accept the compliment offered to every woman of the party, and offend you, or to make myself conspicious, refuse Mr. Veritzen's bouquet and wear the flowers which you in all probability would not have sent save for Edith's suggestion."

"I suppose I never sent you flowers for a party before," he said hotly.

"Of course you have. You are always most lavish—and considerate," I answered with emphasis "But this party is for school and college youngsters. You know as well as I do that no one of the chaperones would have thought of wearing flowers if it had not been for Mr. Veritzen's flamboyant gesture."

I tried to make my voice derisive, knowing that Dicky was always absurdly pleased when I said anything derogatory of my employer. That the ruse worked I saw when his next words ignored entirely the subject of Mr. Veritzen, and instead were querulously defensive, with no trace of the ill-suppressed fury which had been in them before.

"All right, all right, have it your own way," he said impatiently. "But why is it that you always have to pick on Ede? She had no 'scheme,' she simply was so delighted at the prospect of one of old Phil's nosegays for herself that she blatted about it. But why should she want to know especially that you were going to wear his flowers, too?"

Dicky never had been guilty of a smirk, but the second cousin of that expression was undeniably touching his lips. I knew that a successful formula for placating him—letting him think that I was jealous of Edith Fairfax—was working. It is a ruse of which I am not particularly proud, and one which I use only in a grave emergency.

I looked at him steadily and gave an airy little laugh.

Not Worth a Quarrel

"If you do not know the answer to that I surely am not going to tell you," I said. "But you do know it, even better than I. However, that has nothing to do with it, so suppose we forget that part of it. Indeed, the whole affair isn't worth the hint of a quarrel between you and me, Dicky."

"Right you are," he said quickly, reaching out his hand and catching mine, regardless of Purnell at the rear of the room busily sorting the blossoms into piles of each variety, as I had instructed him to do. Despite the tenseness of our colloquy, we had spoken in tones inaudible to any one but ourselves, and I indicated Purnell with a warning glance. But I did not withdraw my hand, and as Dicky ignored my silent warning I came a little closer to him, so that my body shielded the little curves from Purnell's inquiring eyes.

"Dicky, dear," I said softly, "I want to talk to you for five minutes or less. There are things I must tell you, and something I want to ask you. Won't you sit down at one of those tables over there," I indicated one at the corner of the room farthest from Purnell, "and listen to me without comment until I have finished? Then I'll listen to you—

WTAM to Honor Evan Williams in Radio Hour

Sunday at 5 p. m. the WTAM Concert Hour, under the direction of Walter Logan, honors the memory of one of America's great tenors, Evan Williams.

Strange to say an Akron tenor, the birthplace and home of Williams, in the person of Chester E. Zohn, will be accorded the honor of singing songs that were favorites in the Williams' repertoire.

Evans Williams Jr., will be present during this special broadcast. The son of the famous tenor, when acquainted with the proposed program, selected seven numbers as being especially popular with his father. They are "Oh Dry Those Tears," "A Dream," "Four Leaf Clover," "Where 'Ere You Walk," "Waft Her Angels Thru the Sky," an aria from the opera "Martha" "Open the Gates of the Temple" and "Perfect Day." Zohn will sing two of the above numbers.

Chester E. Zohn, the WTAM tenor who will sing on the above program is a personal friend of the Williams family.

Nine Projects Listed in Building Permits

Building activity this week was limited to nine buildings, expected to cost $2,535, if building permits issued by City Clerk Sylvester Larkin may be taken as a barometer of building work.

The largest permit issued was for a $2,000 filling station, the smallest for remodeling a dwelling at an estimated expense of $20. Permits were granted for three garages, expected to cost from $50 to $100.

Secrecy Surrounds Conference of Banker and U. S. Attorney

By International News Service

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6—Secrecy today surrounded the nature of two conferences here late yesterday between James E. Casey, resigned president of the Citizens' National bank of Galion, O., who is charged with the misapplication of bank funds and the falsification of records, and assistant United States District Attorney William McDermott and William Taylor, chief examiner of the Federal Reserve bank.

Neither McDermott nor Taylor would divulge what took place at their respective conferences, which were held behind closed doors with Casey. The appearance of the former bank president, however, gave rise to numerous rumors. One was that Casey had come here to secure permission to reopen the Galion bank, whose doors have been closed since last July when a shortage of $207,000 was discovered in the bank's books.

Another rumor gave rise to the belief that more arrests may be made in connection with the bank scandal and that Casey was called here for further questioning regarding the alleged embezzlement of the bank's funds.

Trial of the former bank executive was recently postponed from the September session of the federal grand jury here to the October session by McDermott, who said that "the case is too important for any hasty action on the part of the government."

BLOCKS MOVE OF BONDSMEN

Judge Overrules Motion for New Hearing on Bond Order.

Special To The Star

BUCYRUS, Sept. 6—Judge J. Walter Wright Friday overruled a motion, filed by Attorneys Charles Schaber and A. S. Leuthold as counsel for the bondsmen for Wilbur Hand, bank robber, for a new hearing on their application for remission of the bond. Six reasons were cited by the bondsmen's attorneys why a new trial should be granted.

The bondsmen, H. N. Oberlander and George Rinsel were Wednesday ordered to pay into the county the $17,500 held by them as indemnity for the $25,000 bond, jumped by Hand, who is now serving a sentence in the Ohio penitentiary.

The supreme court, that refused to review the case when a first application was made, has indicated that a rehearing will be taken up when it convenes in October.

FOUR-TEAM BATTLE FOR PENNANT LOOMS IN SCHOLASTIC RACE

Ashland Is Dark Horse, While Bucyrus Threatens with Talbott Back.

BY BOB ELLIOTT

With Dewey Bohyer starting regular scrimmages already in preparation for the tough opening game with Toledo Central on Sept. 20 the 1930 Harding gridiron machine is starting to take some semblance of form. Injuries have claimed two of the Red and Black aspirants, Wright, promising pivot candidate going down with a cracked ankle in the first night of scrimmage, and Chuck Augenstine sustaining a badly mussed up face as a result of being stepped on when trying to make a tackle.

The starting lineup for the opening clash is about as well known by you or I as by Mr. Bohyer at the present time. The morning scrimmages are being used by the head mentor to try to shape up something that looks like a first string combine while the afternoons are being devoted to what Bohyer calls theory practice, the time being given over to interpretation of the rules and changes from last year and discussing various plays.

All Small Teams

It's now a uncontested fact that the Red and Black gridders will be a light outfit but advance reports from the other N. C. O. schools also point to midget teams for the oncoming season.

The majority of critics are picking a four-way scrap for the flag with Bucyrus, Mansfield, Harding and Ashland in the going. Galion and Shelby are given little chance to go anywhere due to the extremely large number of lettermen lost.

Bucyrus with its star back Talbott ready to don the moleskins once more presents a real threat to other schools despite the "Gil Doby" predictions of its coach Jay Winters. Winters lost 12 men by graduation from last year's eleven so maintains he won't be going any place but he may be wrong. The former Wesleyan star says he hasn't a bad nucleus for a first string outfit but his reserve strength will wreck his chances for the pennant.

Mansfield as usual will be strong. The Tigers profited plenty through the spring practice and Murphy has started in working on his first team already. Mansfield scribes are predicting another pennant if they can get around Marion and Ashland. Luckie, Fish, Brandon, Brooks and Captain Matthews form the best of the veteran backs.

Ashland Uncertain

Ashland is the dark horse of the loop with last year's green team a little more experienced. Rosy Starns can't very well end up out of the first three with players like Matthews, Wiley, Peck, Paxton and Enck back to do the main work.

Shelby faces a tough schedule with absolutely all new material. Art Shreffler, Boutwell, Deardorf, Nicklas, Huber, Skiles and all of last year's stars are gone with the exception of Jimmy Miller, star quarter. "Chick" Young, captain of last year's unbeaten and untied Ohio U team, is at the helm here for the first year and finds anything but a good outlook.

Three backs, and the same number of lineman are the lettermen that will greet Galion this year. The schedule is one of the hardest ever tackled by a Galion team and they're not figured to go very far.

Freeman One Happy Boy After Surprise Triumph Over Champ

LOSES CROWN

Young Jack Thompson, found Tommy Freeman of Cleveland a little too tough in his first defense of his welter title last night in the sixth city and as a result is now just another welter. Freeman had already defeated Thompson before he won the crown in Detroit.

SPORT RAMBLINGS

BY BOB ELLIOTT

THE Little World Series will resume play Monday with Lee Street facing the Erie Roundhouse. The railroaders face the tough problem of having to defeat the church team twice in three days to win the city championship which is a tough assignment for any team. With one pitcher, Erie's task is harder than usual for Lee Street has three available hurlers for the two clashes. But then Fadley has defeated Calvary and the Roundhouse team already in the series, limiting the latter to six bingles and winning, 7 to 4 despite four errors on the part of his teammates. He should win Monday and the series right there.

• • •

A hot battle is looming for the batting championship of the series, always an interesting fight. Flash Baldauf, Calvary shortstop, has a good lead now but if Glen Price and Joe Lang keep up their recent pace they'll be right in there at the finish. These two Erie left-handed clouters are hitting the ball on the nose and proving themselves to be terrible nuisances to the other title aspirants, especially Gruber and Messenger. If these two, together with the other potentially strong Erie hitters, can do anything at all with Fadley they'll have a good chance to stretch the series out to the full seven games.

ABOUT all we've got done so far this morning is to answer the phone and take entries for the county tennis championship tournament that is scheduled to get under way the middle of next week. Drawings are to be made this afternoon and announced in Monday's Star. It's almost sure that a large entry list will battle for the men's singles championship and the trophy that will go to the winner. Keen competition is expected in the men's doubles where last-minute entries have raised the field to a high number, including the best in the county. It is still doubtful if enough entries will be secured to sponsor a women's singles tournament.

CLEVELANDER WINS IN CLOSING ROUNDS OF WELTER BATTLE

Hill-Billy from Arkansas Hands Out Thompson Few Boxing Lessons.

BY MARION O. CHENOWETH
I. N. S. Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6—A new champion ruled the world of welterweights today. His name is Tommy Freeman, the noted hill-billy from way down in Arkansas, who last night revealed a few neat and new tricks in the gentle art of boxing to Young Jack Thompson of Los Angeles, the champion-that-was.

That bruising eleventh looked to be the beginning of the end for the Arkansas lad, but four rounds more of battling showed that it really meant the beginning of the downfall of the cool-headed colored mauler, Young Jack, who placed his title at stake for the first and last time last night.

Finishes Strong

Bleeding at the nose and from a gash on his cheek, Freeman fought a desperate fight in the twelfth, landing blow after blow to the body and face which could do nothing else than make a groggy man out of Young Jack. It was the same story in the thirteenth, and again in the fourteenth, and it seemed only a matter of formality for Referee Haley to hoist Tommy's hand into the air after the exhibition in the fifteenth.

The result of the title bout, of course, didn't satisfy everyone, but it was hard to find anyone who wasn't of the opinion that the Thompson-Freeman fracas was one of the greatest, if not the greatest fight in boxing history. It was hard-fought throughout with nary a questionable blow.

Thompson, cool and confident until the final gong, made a staunch defense of his title. Many of his blows, however, missed their mark. Freeman took Young Jack's tabs but he returned them as quickly as they came.

Eight of the 15 rounds easily went to Freeman, and more liberal critics along press row even awarded him 10. Young Jack looked exceedingly good for five of the rounds early in the fight, while two, including the first, were questionably close.

Haley, the referee, said afterward that he had credited Freeman with eight rounds and Thompson with five. Two, in his judgment, were even.

Thompson landed the harder punches, Haley diagnosed, but Freeman landed the cleaner blows, scored more frequently, and made Thompson miss several times.

Misses Punches

"In fact," Haley said, "I have never seen a champion miss so many punches. I told Thompson later in the dressing room that his missing blows caused me to give the decision to Freeman."

Freeman, who normally weighs more than 147-pound welter limit, tipped the scales last night at 145¾, which was two pounds above the weight of Young Jack. The wiseacres had predicted that the making of the weight would tell on Freeman over the long stretch, but the wiseacres were wrong, for Tommy stood up and fought toe-to-toe under Thompson's heavy trip-hammer attack.

Bat Battalino Takes Walloping in Flint

By International News Service

DETROIT, Sept. 6—The pugilistic prestige of Bat Battalino, featherweight champion of the world, has suffered a heavy blow today as the result of his 10-round encounter with Roger Bernard, a Flint, Michigan, boy, who was given the decision after the gruelling non-title bout.

Battalino, always a crude sort of a champion in his division, was made to look even cruder. Bernard had little trouble in slugging him abot uthe ring and the only time the Flint youth was in anything which resembled difficulty was in the third round when a short right to the chin spun him to the canvas.

Bowling

The Steam Shovel bowling league started play last night with team No. 1 jumping into a good lead with three victories over team No. 5. No. 4 team took two out of three from No. 8 as did team No. 6 from No. 2 and No. 3 from No. 7.

The three high scores were H. Fies' 257, B. Jacoby's 202 and C. Williams' 200.

BRITISH IMPRESSIVE AS SERIES OPENS UP

Failure of Eric Pedley To Maintain Early Form Causes Odds on Americans To Take Long Drop.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 — With a bubble and sparkle and froth so characteristic of the event, the premiere of the international polo series between America and England, champagne cocktail on the menu of sport, will be presented at Meadowbrook field late this afternoon before a gallary of 40,000, shaken out of its stylish calm by the stark realism of the spectacle. There is nothing like an international polo match to gladden the eye and make the gorge rise; so the bellwethers of society and finance for once will lose that air of detached boredom and promptly go elemental under the stress of a great moment.

Not since 1914, when the British came here to reclaim the cup and hold it for seven long years, has a polo invasion carried the potential menace of this one. The Anglicans, their ranks riddled by injuries and illness, have barely a representative four to place upon the field but that quartet happens to be their best. They will face an American team that is suspected of having been better two weeks ago than it is today—in brief, an American team that may not be America's best.

Favorites at 3-2

Thus the first match of a three game series is about to begin with America a natural, but receding favorite at odds of 3 to 2 over a British team that is coming on as the match approaches and hence, from America's viewpoint, may come too far entirely.

The official teams, as named late yesterday afternoon, by the two countries are as follows:

America—Eric Bedley, No. 1; E. A. S. Hopping, Jr., No. 2; Tommy Hitchcock, No. 3, and Winston Guest, back.

England—Gerald Balding, No. 1; Lewis Lacey, No. 2; C. T. I. Roark, No. 3, and Humphrey Guinness, back.

On one team will be Tommy Hitchcock, ranking player of the world and the longest hitter of the ages. On another, Lewis Lacey, master shotmaker, probably the finest one-shot man polo has known. On this same team, "Pat" Roark, ranking star of the United Kingdom, a man without a weakness. Just ahead of him on the American side will come galloping the dashing figure of Eric Pedley, until a week ago polo's first point-a-minute man.

Around Pedley as a matter of fact, now looms an aura of doubt and uncertainty where once he had been the toast of the cup candidates. Eight to 10 goals each afternoon he poured through the posts in early and intermediate test matches but apparently, these either were too many or the changes in the No. 2 American spot were too swift and disturbing. In any case, Pedley's goal-getting has fallen away appreciably and there is no assurance that his touch will return to him this afternoon, since Hopping at No. 2 is merely regarded as being the best candidate of an indifferent lot. His has been the burden of successive injuries that restrained development and robbed him of his punch. So much for the dubious aspect of America's outlook.

Carnera Going Home To Meet Spanish Heavy

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—Land sakes! Whatta ya think! Bootsie is going to leave us! Going home to that dear old Sunny Italy to meet the king and all the other big guns with a view of pleading himself back with us for big doings in June at least. He will sail Sept. 27.

Bill Duffy has promised us a Carnera and Schmeling fight for the world's heavyweight title at Jersey City in June and Bill was ready and still is, to wager Bill Carey and Frank Bruen that it comes off, despite the seemingly iron-clad contract that the latter two gentlemen have on Max's services.

The news of Primo's' contemplated trip home came with the signing of Carnera and Paulino Uzcudun for a battle in Barcelona, Spain, the last week in October or the first week in November.

Dickson signed Paulino for three fights, the third to be with Billy Stribling in London, but hinging on two victories which Paulino must turn in first.

Starting off Dickson signed Paulino to meet the great "Griselle" in Paris Oct. 15.

The Carnera bout comes next, each of these being over the 10-round route.

GIANTS LOSE THIRD IN ROW TO BRAVES AS BUCS DROP CUBS

Cards Jump into Second Place by Half-Game When Bruins Lose.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—Up and down the countryside the sear and yellow leaves are whirling downward and in the orchards from coast to coast fat and juicy winesaps and Jonathans are bouncing to earth with resounding smacks but by far and wide today's best decline and fall appears to be that New York Giants.

They lost the third in a row to the Boston Braves yesterday, 6 to 4, and relinquished second place in the National whirl to St. Louis. They can't hit and they can't field and it was the unpleasant duty of Dave Bancroft to call Manager John McGraw on the phone and ask him what to do about today's double-header. Dave also had to tell Mr. McGraw that Hubbell allowed the Braves 12 hits in six innings and the mighty Giant infield blew up and Terry did not get a single hit. Outside of that, everything was jake, said Dave, and please reverse the charges.

Homer Turns Trick

A homer in the ninth inning by Paul Waner furnished the second triumph of the series to the Pirates over the Cubs, 8 to 7. Pat Malone greeted the porcelains in the eighth. Osborn making the unfortunate finish, while Brame went the route for the Bucs.

The Senators humiliated the Yankees for the seventeenth time this season, Alvin Crowder, mighty Washington righthander, becoming lenient after seven scoreless innings to finally finish it, 14 to 5. Babe Ruth started on the trail of Hack Wilson to reclaim his home run honors and blasted number 45, plating the great man only one foot to baser behind the mighty Bruin.

Al Simmons stocked his home number 34 and aided George Earnshaw to mark up his twenty-first victory of the season, by lowering Boston, 5 to 1.

Pete Jablonowski stunned the White Sox with only four hits as Chicago bowed to Cleveland, 6 to

King Football Opens Reign In Buckeye Schools; State, Ohio U. Claim Interest

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 6—With the end of the current baseball season just around the corner, the world's series in the offing, Indian summer not far away and school bells ringing, King football is about to ascend his throne once more.

Most of Ohio's 37 universities and colleges open their doors next week to their thousands of students and the Buckeye campuses will buzz again with activity, bringing with it all, a decided aroma of pigskins and headgears.

State on Stage

Ohio State will occupy the biggest stage in the Buckeye state's parade of elevens again as Coach Sam Willaman enters upon his second season as pilot of the Scarlet and Gray eleven.

Next in football importance comes the Buckeye Intercollegiate Athletic Association, whose ranks are now depleted by the withdrawal of Wittenberg. The once-famous "big six" is now known as the "big five." The conference consists of Ohio University, Ohio Wesleyan, Cincinnati, Miami and Denison.

Much interest will be focused on the Ohio University Bobcats, who made an enviable record last year by capturing the Buckeye conference championship and was one of the few undefeated elevens in the United States. Many of the Green and White stars were lost by graduation but a few promising sophomores should bolster the old guard enough to help Coach Don Peden in moulding another formidable grid team.

Ohio's largest athletic league, the Ohio conference, adds another member to its fold this year. Ashland college, which has attracted notice in the last few years by stepping along with the leaders, becomes the eighteenth member of the old league. The hilltop school was on probation in the Ohio conference last year and won most of its games with members of the group.

Picking a potential champion of this association would be suicide at this stage of the game. Let it ride for a couple of weeks after lines are sifted and backfields are shifted into some sort of form.

Bee Gees Look Good

The third league in this football-crazy state of Ohio is a five-team association known as the Northwestern Ohio conference. Its members are Defiance, Bowling Green, Bluffton, Findlay and Toledo.

Bowling Green won the northwest crown in 1929 and looms as a possible champion this year with 10 lettermen from the championship flock expected to return to the Falcon camp. Defiance again is potentially strong and is booked to fight it out with the 1929 Champs.

Non-affiliated colleges in Ohio are John Carroll, Cedarville, Rio Grande, Kent State, Antioch, Wilmington and Wilberforce.

John Carroll is consistently the strongest of these, but the Irish do not play many teams in Ohio Other Catholic institutions from other states provide most of the opposition for Carroll.

GRAND JURY TO MEET MONDAY

Second Degree Murder Charge Against Lloyd Bensley To Be Considered.

Chief among the cases to be considered by the Marion county grand jury scheduled to convene for its September session Monday will be the second degree murder charge against Lloyd Bensley of Prospect. Bensley was bound over to the grand jury recently by the municipal court after pleading not guilty to the charge in connection with the fatal shooting of Haze Ashbrook.

A charge of breaking and entering a dwelling against Everett Barnhill will be considered as will one of breaking and entering a storehouse against John Hopkins.

Hopkins is alleged to have broken into and stolen about 60 bushels of wheat from the granary of Norris Carey of near Green Camp. A brother of Hopkins pleaded guilty to the same charge following their arrest.

The jury will hear a case against Henry Blue of carrying concealed weapons. Blue is said to have drawn a gun on an Erie railroad policeman when the latter attempted to arrest him one day last week.

The charge of grand larceny against John Blue will also be considered.

Marion Piper is charged with having stolen a quantity of gasoline from a car parked on Davids street.

Marcellus Jenkins, 28, giving his address as Marion, was bound over to the grand jury on $500 bond yesterday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of issuing a check without funds.

He was not arraigned on a non-support charge filed against him by his wife.

The questionable check charge was brought against him by G. S. Harriman, who claims he received the check from Jenkins on Aug. 9 for $5.

The principal and interest of all of said bonds shall be payable at the office of the City Treasurer in said City of Marion, Ohio.

Section 2. Said bonds shall be designated as "Street Improvement Bonds," shall be prepared by the City Solicitor, be signed by the Mayor and City Auditor, sealed with the City Seal, and recorded in the office of the Sinking Fund Trustees; shall express upon their face the purpose for which they are issued, and the fact they are issued pursuant to law and this Ordinance; shall have the names of the Streets or portions thereof, hereinbefore designated, printed thereon; shall be serial bonds numbered and payable as above provided in their consecutive serial order; and shall be issued and sold under the direction of the Finance Committee of Council.

Section 5. In the event any of the owners of property specially assessed to pay the Property Owners' part of the cost of said improvements shall pay their assessments in cash within thirty days of the date of the final passage of the ordinance levying same may be utilized for the retirement of said notes or a portion thereof, then such cash payments shall be so utilized, and the aggregate amount of bonds to be issued shall be reduced by deducting the amount so paid and utilized from the total amount of the bonds to be issued, and the bonds herein provided for first maturing shall be correspondingly reduced by the omission of so many thereof as shall equal said above mentioned cash payments, or by changing the denomination of one of said bonds, or both, as the case may be, and the amount to be credited to the foregoing funds from the sale of said bonds shall be likewise reduced by the amount of such cash payments.

Section 6. All installments of said assessments and all portions thereof, together with the interest thereon, shall be applied to the payment of said bonds and interest as the same shall become due, and to no other purpose whatsoever.

Section 7. That the faith, revenue and credit of said city of Marion, Ohio, are hereby pledged for the prompt payment of both principal and interest of the bonds hereinbefore described in accordance with the laws and constitution of the State of Ohio.

Section 8. That for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of bonds promptly when and as the same falls due, and also to create and maintain a fund sufficient to discharge the said bonds at maturity, there shall be and is hereby levied on all taxable property of said City of Marion, Ohio, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually during the period for which said bonds are to run, in an amount sufficient to provide for the discharge of the principal of said serial bonds at maturity, which tax shall not be less than the interest and sinking fund tax required by Section 11 of Article XII of the Constitution; provided, however, that in each year that the assessments anticipated by said bonds are payable and applicable to the payment of such interest and principal and are appropriated for such purposes, the amount of such tax shall be reduced by the amount of the assessments so appropriated.

That said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that the taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected.
